

- 1 Juno Beach Pier and the Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
The 996-foot-long Juno Beach Pier was built by Palm Beach County in 1999. The pier is managed by the Logghehead MarineLife Center and is open to casual visitors as well as saltwater fishermen.
- 2 Juno Beach Park
Juno Beach County park serves residents and tourists who come to visit the pier and its ligand-supervised beaches. Along with free parking, amenities include picnic tables, showers and restrooms.
- 3 Juno Dunes Natural Area (West Trail)
This 527-acre preserve is so unique in south Florida, it is easily accessible by car from U.S. 1, half mile north of Donald Ross Road, and boat from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway.
- 4 Logghehead MarineLife Center and Eleanor Fletcher
The Logghehead MarineLife Center is our major tourist attraction in Juno Beach, drawing more than 350,000 visitors a year. Its special focus is on the preservation of the ocean ecosystem with a mission to protect and conserve the natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 5 Juno Dunes Natural Area (Oceanfront Trail) at Logghehead Park
This 42-acre preserve is one of the very rare tracts of land in Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 6 Celestial Railroad Historical Marker
This marker commemorates the Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway which operated right where you are standing for only six years from 1889 to 1895. The history of the Celestial Railroad is more fully covered at Stop 12 where you will see photos of the train and its exact route.
- 7 Juno Beach Historic Site
The site of today's Logghehead Park was first occupied by Oscar and Hilda Erikson who, in 1932, built a set of rustic guest cabins and a roadside convenience store they called the Juno Beach Camp. The street running through Logghehead Park is named Erikson Way to commemorate them.
- 8 The Model Era and Tunnel
In the decades after World War II, Ocean Drive in Juno Beach was an almost solid stretch of motels. One of the motels on this plaque gives you a good idea of what you would have seen if you were driving here in the 1950s to 1970s. Don't miss the tunnel under Ocean Drive that directly connected a former motel to the beach.
- 9 Zephyr Way—Juno Beach Homes of the 1950s
Zephyr Way is a 5-napped private road off Ocean Drive, just south of Donald Ross Road. Visiting it is a bit like stepping into a time machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s. The town machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s.
- 10 The Dawn of Tourism
This stop will take you back to the 1930s and 1940s, when the first beachside cottages attracted tourists to the area. The plaque shows colorful advertisements and aerial images from that era, and how the Surf Cottages motel served as a Coast Guard station during World War II.
- 11 The First Town Hall and Town Hall Park
Although Juno Beach was incorporated as a town in 1953, it had no government offices. Its meetings were held in various motels and restaurants. The town leased and later purchased a gas station that formerly stood here. They renovated it to serve as its Town Hall and Police Station from 1961 to 1991.
- 12 The Celestial Railroad
The Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway, better known as the Celestial Railroad, operated from 1889 to 1895. The audio tour will take you back to the 1880s, and you'll learn how this line changed the life of the settlers. Why it was essential to the opening of Palm Beach, and why it ran for only six years.
- 13 September 11 Remembrance
In a cool, shady area besides the bubbling fountain on the north side of Town Center, you'll see a sculpture by West Palm Beach artist Mark Fuller. Commemorates America's resilience in the face of the tragedy on that date in 2001.
- 14 Town Center and Police Department
Our Town Center, which opened in 1991, moved from its previous site in Town Hall Park where it had been housed in a converted gas station. The project was financed with a combination of public and private support and contains the town's administrative offices and Council Chamber. Visit during business hours as there's lots to see inside. The audio tour has three parts: interesting details about the building itself and the events that take place here, a guided tour of the interior of the building, and an introduction to our Police Department.
- 15 Eleanor Fletcher and the Children's Museum
This plaque tells the impressive story of Eleanor Fletcher. Fascinated by sea turtles, she began learning everything she could about their behavior. Her Children's Museum of Juno Beach evolved into today's Logghehead MarineLife Center.
- 16 Mercury Road—Juno Beach Businesses in the 1950s
In 1950, the Bessemer Properties Corporation intended to create Juno Beach as a tourist destination with the main attraction being the Fishing Pier at the end of this block. Their vision, never realized, was that there would be bustling tourist shops on both sides of this street, and they even dubbed it the Juno Beach Shopping Center.
- 17 The Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
At the east end of Mercury Road, there's a historical plaque showing and describing the original Juno Beach Fishing Pier. Made of steel, it extended 550 feet into the ocean. Completed in 1950, it was the key part of the developer's vision for Juno Beach.
- 18 The Castle
This private residence at 301 Ocean Drive is a unique home created by a retired Chicago builder in 1985, who wished to create a dream home for his wife. With turrets, archways, Roman stately, and leaded-glass windows, it appears to have been transported from Renaissance Italy.
- 19 Pelican Lake
Imagine standing here 150 years ago when South Florida was virtually unsettled. You would have seen an extended marsh. Its waters were gently flowing southward through Kagan Park and the Seminoe Golf Club until they reached Little Lake Worth, where the Oakbrook Square shopping center is today.
- 20 The Creation of Juno Beach
The images and details on this plaque reveal how the core of Juno Beach was transformed from marsh and scrubland to a booming tourist mecca in a little over a decade. It explains the layout and attractions that were planned by Bessemer Properties of West Palm Beach.
- 21 From Hotels to Condos
You will find this plaque at the bend in Celestial Way, just opposite the beach access path. The Greenberg, which stands just across the street, opened in 1966 as the first condominium in Juno Beach. It may entertain you to see how the apartments were being marketed at that time and how much they were being sold for.
- 22 The Pelican Lake Ecosystem
In the late 1940s, the developer who decided to create Juno Beach as a resort wanted Pelican Lake and the Fishing Pier to be its key features. The plaque explains how a lake was created from a marsh, whose waters rose and fell considerably with the seasons. During a short stroll along the south side of the lake, the audio tour will teach you about the fish and fowl that live in and around it.
- 23 The Founders of Juno Beach and Kagan Park
This park is named after Stanley Kagan, the highly-respected mayor of Juno Beach from 1966 to 1969. It contains picnic tables, a playground, basketball hoops, exercise bars and a bocce court in the upper area.
- 24 NextEra Energy/Florida Power & Light Co.
Juno Beach is the headquarters of the world's largest utility company, NextEra Energy, and the world's largest generator of renewable energy from the wind and sun. Its subsidiary, Florida Power & Light Company is the largest rate-regulated electric utility in the United States. The audio tour also explains the fascinating story of a species of butterfly that lives here.

- 1 Juno Beach Pier and the Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
The 996-foot-long Juno Beach Pier was built by Palm Beach County in 1999. The pier is managed by the Logghehead MarineLife Center and is open to casual visitors as well as saltwater fishermen.
- 2 Juno Beach Park
Juno Beach County park serves residents and tourists who come to visit the pier and its ligand-supervised beaches. Along with free parking, amenities include picnic tables, showers and restrooms.
- 3 Juno Dunes Natural Area (West Trail)
This 527-acre preserve is so unique in south Florida, it is easily accessible by car from U.S. 1, half mile north of Donald Ross Road, and boat from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway.
- 4 Logghehead MarineLife Center and Eleanor Fletcher
The Logghehead MarineLife Center is our major tourist attraction in Juno Beach, drawing more than 350,000 visitors a year. Its special focus is on the preservation of the ocean ecosystem with a mission to protect and conserve the natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 5 Juno Dunes Natural Area (Oceanfront Trail) at Logghehead Park
This 42-acre preserve is one of the very rare tracts of land in Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 6 Celestial Railroad Historical Marker
This marker commemorates the Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway which operated right where you are standing for only six years from 1889 to 1895. The history of the Celestial Railroad is more fully covered at Stop 12 where you will see photos of the train and its exact route.
- 7 Juno Beach Historic Site
The site of today's Logghehead Park was first occupied by Oscar and Hilda Erikson who, in 1932, built a set of rustic guest cabins and a roadside convenience store they called the Juno Beach Camp. The street running through Logghehead Park is named Erikson Way to commemorate them.
- 8 The Model Era and Tunnel
In the decades after World War II, Ocean Drive in Juno Beach was an almost solid stretch of motels. One of the motels on this plaque gives you a good idea of what you would have seen if you were driving here in the 1950s to 1970s. Don't miss the tunnel under Ocean Drive that directly connected a former motel to the beach.
- 9 Zephyr Way—Juno Beach Homes of the 1950s
Zephyr Way is a 5-napped private road off Ocean Drive, just south of Donald Ross Road. Visiting it is a bit like stepping into a time machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s. The town machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s.
- 10 The Dawn of Tourism
This stop will take you back to the 1930s and 1940s, when the first beachside cottages attracted tourists to the area. The plaque shows colorful advertisements and aerial images from that era, and how the Surf Cottages motel served as a Coast Guard station during World War II.
- 11 The First Town Hall and Town Hall Park
Although Juno Beach was incorporated as a town in 1953, it had no government offices. Its meetings were held in various motels and restaurants. The town leased and later purchased a gas station that formerly stood here. They renovated it to serve as its Town Hall and Police Station from 1961 to 1991.
- 12 The Celestial Railroad
The Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway, better known as the Celestial Railroad, operated from 1889 to 1895. The audio tour will take you back to the 1880s, and you'll learn how this line changed the life of the settlers. Why it was essential to the opening of Palm Beach, and why it ran for only six years.
- 13 September 11 Remembrance
In a cool, shady area besides the bubbling fountain on the north side of Town Center, you'll see a sculpture by West Palm Beach artist Mark Fuller. Commemorates America's resilience in the face of the tragedy on that date in 2001.
- 14 Town Center and Police Department
Our Town Center, which opened in 1991, moved from its previous site in Town Hall Park where it had been housed in a converted gas station. The project was financed with a combination of public and private support and contains the town's administrative offices and Council Chamber. Visit during business hours as there's lots to see inside. The audio tour has three parts: interesting details about the building itself and the events that take place here, a guided tour of the interior of the building, and an introduction to our Police Department.
- 15 Eleanor Fletcher and the Children's Museum
This plaque tells the impressive story of Eleanor Fletcher. Fascinated by sea turtles, she began learning everything she could about their behavior. Her Children's Museum of Juno Beach evolved into today's Logghehead MarineLife Center.
- 16 Mercury Road—Juno Beach Businesses in the 1950s
In 1950, the Bessemer Properties Corporation intended to create Juno Beach as a tourist destination with the main attraction being the Fishing Pier at the end of this block. Their vision, never realized, was that there would be bustling tourist shops on both sides of this street, and they even dubbed it the Juno Beach Shopping Center.
- 17 The Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
At the east end of Mercury Road, there's a historical plaque showing and describing the original Juno Beach Fishing Pier. Made of steel, it extended 550 feet into the ocean. Completed in 1950, it was the key part of the developer's vision for Juno Beach.
- 18 The Castle
This private residence at 301 Ocean Drive is a unique home created by a retired Chicago builder in 1985, who wished to create a dream home for his wife. With turrets, archways, Roman stately, and leaded-glass windows, it appears to have been transported from Renaissance Italy.
- 19 Pelican Lake
Imagine standing here 150 years ago when South Florida was virtually unsettled. You would have seen an extended marsh. Its waters were gently flowing southward through Kagan Park and the Seminoe Golf Club until they reached Little Lake Worth, where the Oakbrook Square shopping center is today.
- 20 The Creation of Juno Beach
The images and details on this plaque reveal how the core of Juno Beach was transformed from marsh and scrubland to a booming tourist mecca in a little over a decade. It explains the layout and attractions that were planned by Bessemer Properties of West Palm Beach.
- 21 From Hotels to Condos
You will find this plaque at the bend in Celestial Way, just opposite the beach access path. The Greenberg, which stands just across the street, opened in 1966 as the first condominium in Juno Beach. It may entertain you to see how the apartments were being marketed at that time and how much they were being sold for.
- 22 The Pelican Lake Ecosystem
In the late 1940s, the developer who decided to create Juno Beach as a resort wanted Pelican Lake and the Fishing Pier to be its key features. The plaque explains how a lake was created from a marsh, whose waters rose and fell considerably with the seasons. During a short stroll along the south side of the lake, the audio tour will teach you about the fish and fowl that live in and around it.
- 23 The Founders of Juno Beach and Kagan Park
This park is named after Stanley Kagan, the highly-respected mayor of Juno Beach from 1966 to 1969. It contains picnic tables, a playground, basketball hoops, exercise bars and a bocce court in the upper area.
- 24 NextEra Energy/Florida Power & Light Co.
Juno Beach is the headquarters of the world's largest utility company, NextEra Energy, and the world's largest generator of renewable energy from the wind and sun. Its subsidiary, Florida Power & Light Company is the largest rate-regulated electric utility in the United States. The audio tour also explains the fascinating story of a species of butterfly that lives here.

- 1 Juno Beach Pier and the Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
The 996-foot-long Juno Beach Pier was built by Palm Beach County in 1999. The pier is managed by the Logghehead MarineLife Center and is open to casual visitors as well as saltwater fishermen.
- 2 Juno Beach Park
Juno Beach County park serves residents and tourists who come to visit the pier and its ligand-supervised beaches. Along with free parking, amenities include picnic tables, showers and restrooms.
- 3 Juno Dunes Natural Area (West Trail)
This 527-acre preserve is so unique in south Florida, it is easily accessible by car from U.S. 1, half mile north of Donald Ross Road, and boat from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway. Stop at the formation key from the Intracoastal Waterway.
- 4 Logghehead MarineLife Center and Eleanor Fletcher
The Logghehead MarineLife Center is our major tourist attraction in Juno Beach, drawing more than 350,000 visitors a year. Its special focus is on the preservation of the ocean ecosystem with a mission to protect and conserve the natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 5 Juno Dunes Natural Area (Oceanfront Trail) at Logghehead Park
This 42-acre preserve is one of the very rare tracts of land in Florida that remains in its natural condition. This ancient coastal Florida that remains in its natural condition.
- 6 Celestial Railroad Historical Marker
This marker commemorates the Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway which operated right where you are standing for only six years from 1889 to 1895. The history of the Celestial Railroad is more fully covered at Stop 12 where you will see photos of the train and its exact route.
- 7 Juno Beach Historic Site
The site of today's Logghehead Park was first occupied by Oscar and Hilda Erikson who, in 1932, built a set of rustic guest cabins and a roadside convenience store they called the Juno Beach Camp. The street running through Logghehead Park is named Erikson Way to commemorate them.
- 8 The Model Era and Tunnel
In the decades after World War II, Ocean Drive in Juno Beach was an almost solid stretch of motels. One of the motels on this plaque gives you a good idea of what you would have seen if you were driving here in the 1950s to 1970s. Don't miss the tunnel under Ocean Drive that directly connected a former motel to the beach.
- 9 Zephyr Way—Juno Beach Homes of the 1950s
Zephyr Way is a 5-napped private road off Ocean Drive, just south of Donald Ross Road. Visiting it is a bit like stepping into a time machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s. The town machine and seeing Juno Beach as it was in the 1950s.
- 10 The Dawn of Tourism
This stop will take you back to the 1930s and 1940s, when the first beachside cottages attracted tourists to the area. The plaque shows colorful advertisements and aerial images from that era, and how the Surf Cottages motel served as a Coast Guard station during World War II.
- 11 The First Town Hall and Town Hall Park
Although Juno Beach was incorporated as a town in 1953, it had no government offices. Its meetings were held in various motels and restaurants. The town leased and later purchased a gas station that formerly stood here. They renovated it to serve as its Town Hall and Police Station from 1961 to 1991.
- 12 The Celestial Railroad
The Jupiter and Lake Worth Railway, better known as the Celestial Railroad, operated from 1889 to 1895. The audio tour will take you back to the 1880s, and you'll learn how this line changed the life of the settlers. Why it was essential to the opening of Palm Beach, and why it ran for only six years.
- 13 September 11 Remembrance
In a cool, shady area besides the bubbling fountain on the north side of Town Center, you'll see a sculpture by West Palm Beach artist Mark Fuller. Commemorates America's resilience in the face of the tragedy on that date in 2001.
- 14 Town Center and Police Department
Our Town Center, which opened in 1991, moved from its previous site in Town Hall Park where it had been housed in a converted gas station. The project was financed with a combination of public and private support and contains the town's administrative offices and Council Chamber. Visit during business hours as there's lots to see inside. The audio tour has three parts: interesting details about the building itself and the events that take place here, a guided tour of the interior of the building, and an introduction to our Police Department.
- 15 Eleanor Fletcher and the Children's Museum
This plaque tells the impressive story of Eleanor Fletcher. Fascinated by sea turtles, she began learning everything she could about their behavior. Her Children's Museum of Juno Beach evolved into today's Logghehead MarineLife Center.
- 16 Mercury Road—Juno Beach Businesses in the 1950s
In 1950, the Bessemer Properties Corporation intended to create Juno Beach as a tourist destination with the main attraction being the Fishing Pier at the end of this block. Their vision, never realized, was that there would be bustling tourist shops on both sides of this street, and they even dubbed it the Juno Beach Shopping Center.
- 17 The Original Juno Beach Fishing Pier
At the east end of Mercury Road, there's a historical plaque showing and describing the original Juno Beach Fishing Pier. Made of steel, it extended 550 feet into the ocean. Completed in 1950, it was the key part of the developer's vision for Juno Beach.
- 18 The Castle
This private residence at 301 Ocean Drive is a unique home created by a retired Chicago builder in 1985, who wished to create a dream home for his wife. With turrets, archways, Roman stately, and leaded-glass windows, it appears to have been transported from Renaissance Italy.
- 19 Pelican Lake
Imagine standing here 150 years ago when South Florida was virtually unsettled. You would have seen an extended marsh. Its waters were gently flowing southward through Kagan Park and the Seminoe Golf Club until they reached Little Lake Worth, where the Oakbrook Square shopping center is today.
- 20 The Creation of Juno Beach
The images and details on this plaque reveal how the core of Juno Beach was transformed from marsh and scrubland to a booming tourist mecca in a little over a decade. It explains the layout and attractions that were planned by Bessemer Properties of West Palm Beach.
- 21 From Hotels to Condos
You will find this plaque at the bend in Celestial Way, just opposite the beach access path. The Greenberg, which stands just across the street, opened in 1966 as the first condominium in Juno Beach. It may entertain you to see how the apartments were being marketed at that time and how much they were being sold for.
- 22 The Pelican Lake Ecosystem
In the late 1940s, the developer who decided to create Juno Beach as a resort wanted Pelican Lake and the Fishing Pier to be its key features. The plaque explains how a lake was created from a marsh, whose waters rose and fell considerably with the seasons. During a short stroll along the south side of the lake, the audio tour will teach you about the fish and fowl that live in and around it.
- 23 The Founders of Juno Beach and Kagan Park
This park is named after Stanley Kagan, the highly-respected mayor of Juno Beach from 1966 to 1969. It contains picnic tables, a playground, basketball hoops, exercise bars and a bocce court in the upper area.
- 24 NextEra Energy/Florida Power & Light Co.
Juno Beach is the headquarters of the world's largest utility company, NextEra Energy, and the world's largest generator of renewable energy from the wind and sun. Its subsidiary, Florida Power & Light Company is the largest rate-regulated electric utility in the United States. The audio tour also explains the fascinating story of a species of butterfly that lives here.

DISCOVER
JUNO BEACH
TAKE THE TOUR

Historical and Landmarks Tour

All of the sites covered by this tour are associated with various periods in the history of the Juno Beach area. The subjects and sites vividly illustrate the transformation of this entire region from a basically rural, isolated area to a modern, urbanized mega-city that stretches from south of Miami to the north end of Palm Beach County. The tour will also highlight current landmarks and the natural surroundings of the area.

ORIGINAL JUNO BEACH FISHING PIER

- The original fishing pier was located at a small beach north of the Logghehead MarineLife Center.
- In 1950, the developer who planned the Juno Beach Town Center decided to build a new pier at the end of Mercury Road.
- The pier was the first major infrastructure project in Juno Beach.
- A 1954 Thanksgiving weekend storm knocked down the original pier.
- The pier was replaced by the current pier in 1955.
- The pier was built by Palm Beach County.

CELESTIAL RAILROAD

- The Celestial Railroad was a narrow-gauge railroad that operated from 1889 to 1895.
- It was the first railroad in Palm Beach County.
- The railroad was built by the Bessemer Properties Corporation.
- It connected Juno Beach to Jupiter and Lake Worth.
- The railroad was used for both passenger and freight service.

THE FIRST JUNO BEACH TOWN HALL

- The first Juno Beach Town Hall was located in the Juno Beach Town Center.
- It was built in 1953.
- The town hall was used for all municipal government functions.
- It was replaced by the current town hall in 1991.

DISCOVER
JUNO BEACH
TAKE THE TOUR

PROJECT HIGHLIGHTS

Website: www.Juno-Beach.FL.US/History

Tour Map: You're looking at it, enjoy!

13 Historical Interpretive Signs:

Located throughout the Town of Juno Beach

Mobile App by:
PocketSights

Download the Mobile App to Take the DISCOVER JUNO BEACH Self-Guided Tour on Your GPS-Enabled Mobile Device

GET IT ON Google Play | Download on the App Store

Graphics Designed by Nancy Pobiak
Cover Photo Courtesy of Gail V. Haines

www.flheritage.com

This project is sponsored in part by the Department of State, Division of Historical Resources and the State of Florida.

DISCOVER
JUNO BEACH
TAKE THE TOUR

TAKE THE TOUR

Historical and Landmarks Tour

Audio Tour Available On

www.Juno-Beach.FL.US/History